

English-Chinese Glossary

This glossary contains the English equivalents of the Chinese vocabulary introduced in the Basic Conversation and Supplementary Vocabulary sections of Intermediate Spoken Chinese. Certain Chinese words whose English equivalents users are not likely to look up (such as Chinese surnames, particles, verb endings, and some measures) have been omitted.

The following information is included for each entry: the English word; a Chinese equivalent, spelled in Pinyin and printed in bold; the word class of the Chinese word [in brackets]; and the numbers of the unit and part where the Chinese word was introduced (in parentheses). For example:

English	Chinese	Word Class	Unit & Part
ant	mǎyǐ	[N]	(14-1)

The purpose of the English-Chinese glossary, which is arranged in alphabetical order of the English words, is to refresh your memory of Chinese words that have previously been introduced but which you may have forgotten. Since each entry includes the number of the unit and part in the textbook where the Chinese equivalent first occurred, you are encouraged to refer back to that part for more detailed information. Do not attempt to learn new words from this glossary; keep in mind that a Chinese word means something only in a certain grammatical and semantic context and that English translations can be misleading.
