

Jumpjet

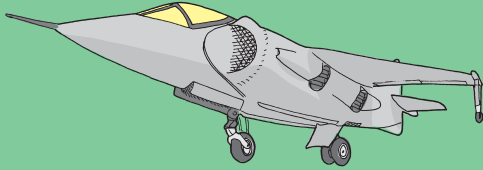

The British Aerospace Harrier was the first practical vertical takeoff and landing (VTOL) fighter. It has been flying for 40 years.

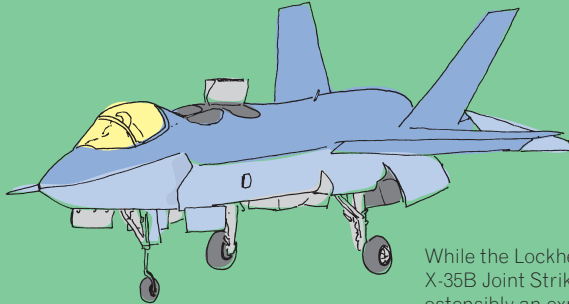

While the Lockheed Martin X-35B Joint Strike Fighter is ostensibly an experimental plane, it is also the prototype of the projected F-35B Lightning II.

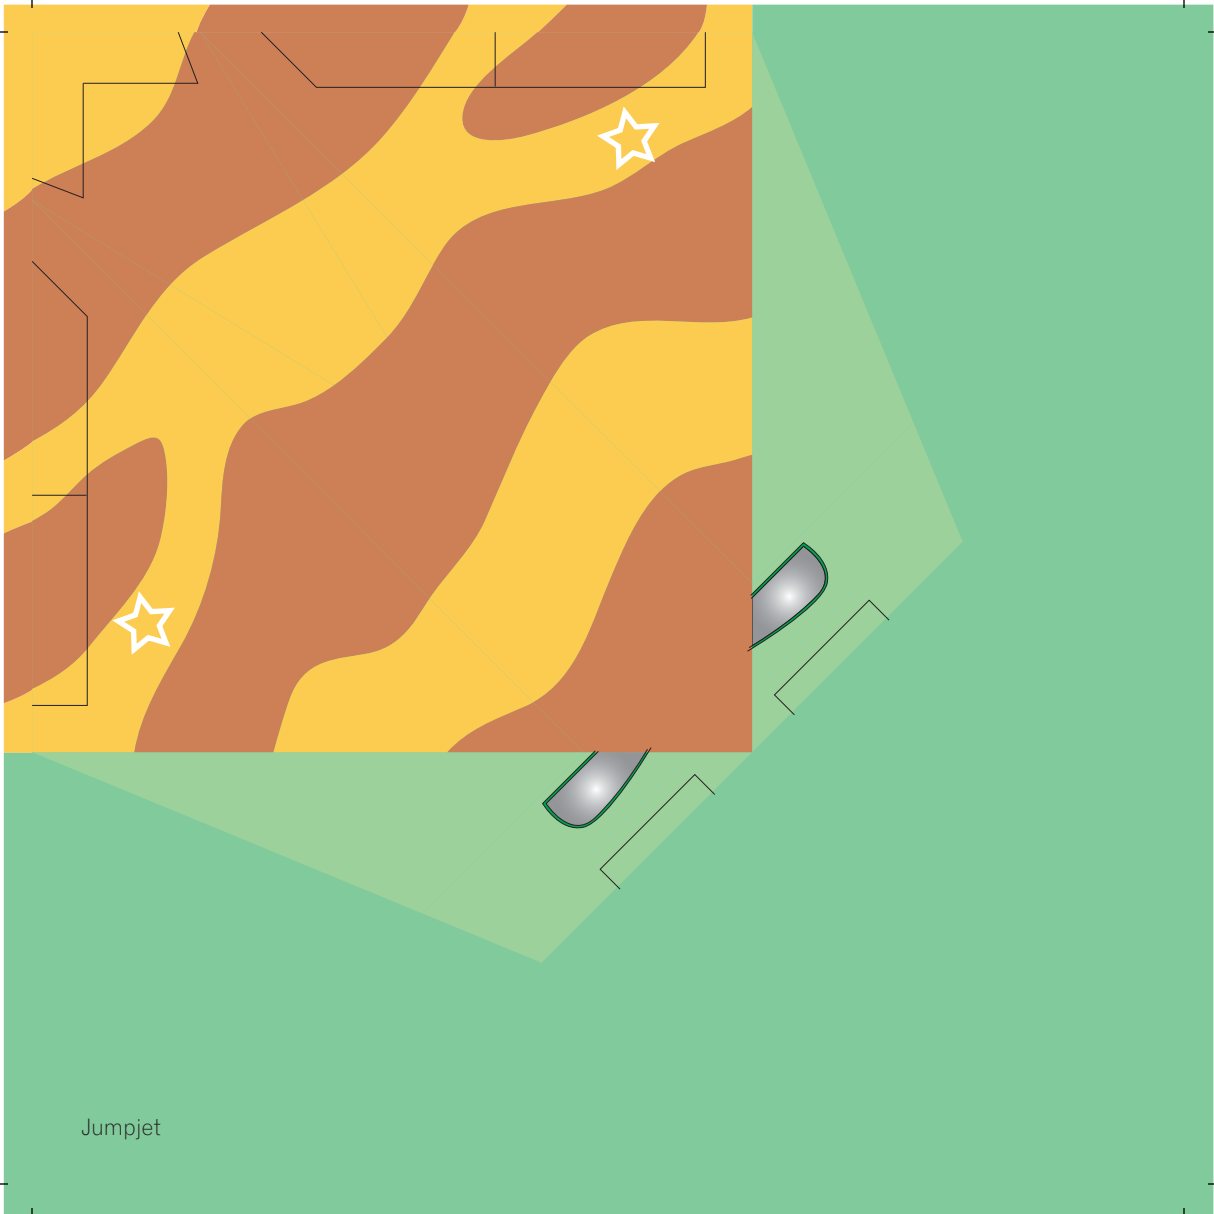

Jumpjet

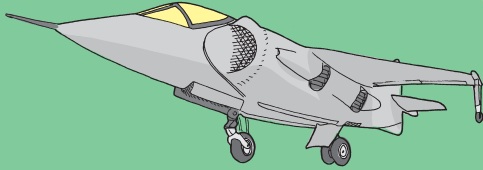

The British Aerospace Harrier was the first practical vertical takeoff and landing (VTOL) fighter. It has been flying for 40 years.

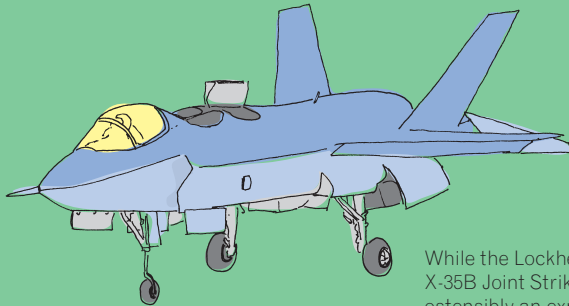

While the Lockheed Martin X-35B Joint Strike Fighter is ostensibly an experimental plane, it is also the prototype of the projected F-35B Lightning II.

Jumpjet

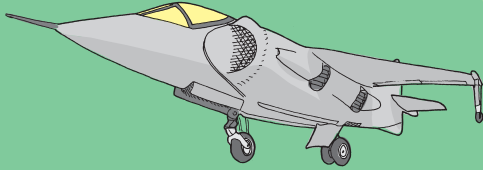

The British Aerospace Harrier was the first practical vertical takeoff and landing (VTOL) fighter. It has been flying for 40 years.

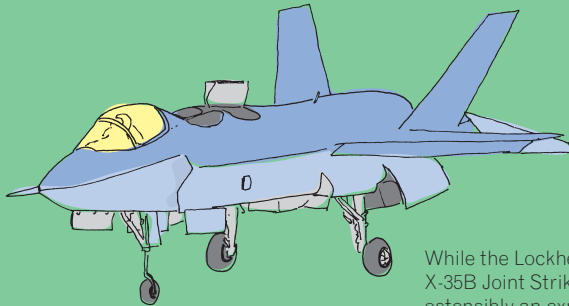

While the Lockheed Martin X-35B Joint Strike Fighter is ostensibly an experimental plane, it is also the prototype of the projected F-35B Lightning II.

Jumpjet

The British Aerospace Harrier was the first practical vertical takeoff and landing (VTOL) fighter. It has been flying for 40 years.

While the Lockheed Martin X-35B Joint Strike Fighter is ostensibly an experimental plane, it is also the prototype of the projected F-35B Lightning II.